Evidence-based Aesthetics: Speaking with Certainty on Smiles

Dr. Mark Berkman

Lecture Summary:

This lecture will present esthetics from an interdisciplinary perspective. Although esthetic assessments and treatments from orthodontic and periodontic viewpoints in particular will be highlighted, material that can benefit all members of the interdisciplinary treatment team will be discussed. Using contemporary evidence and a case-based approach, information on micro- mini- and macro-esthetics of the smile will be presented. Additionally, insight from a patient (consumer) perspective on dental esthetic issues will be given, and tips to enhance discussions regarding patients' treatment options will be provided.

Educational Objectives:

At the conclusion of this course attendees will be able to:

- Better diagnose dental esthetic issues related to size, proportion, and contour
- Manage cases involving altered gingival heights
- Better understand patients' motivations for seeking esthetic treatments
- Enhance discussions with patients regarding esthetic treatment options

Dr. Berkman is a former Howard Hughes Medical Institute research scholar, and a graduate of the orthodontic program at the University of Michigan. He is active in organized dentistry, and is a past-president of the Michigan Association of Orthodontists. He maintains a private practice in Commerce Township, MI, and is a part-time faculty member at the University of Michigan, where he teaches at the predoctoral and postdoctoral levels. Dr. Berkman's research interests include facial growth, biomechanics, and interdisciplinary patient management, and he lectures internationally on these as well as other contemporary topics.

Rouse Signature Lectures Presents:

Sleep Prosthodontics: Not the Same Old Sleep Dentistry Course

Dr. Jeff Rouse

San Diego Jan 8-10

San Antonio April 16-18

Chicago Oct 1-3

Charlotte, NC Oct 22-24

Sleep Prosthodontics is the study of the airway and its impact on the stomatognathic system. The impact of breathing that disturbed sleep is seen in daily dental practice: bruxism, erosion, myalgia, and malocclusion. This differs from a traditional Sleep Dentistry course that focuses on the oral appliance and its' impact on the airway. Dr Rouse will introduce participants to a new vision for dentistry and the amazing role it can play in improving the health and sleep of our patients: Maintain then Resolve. CPAP and oral appliances to achieve a healthier airway. Use the maintenance clues to then attempt to resolve the patients problem and eliminate the appliance. Hands-on screening, nasal breathing and oral appliance projects will be conducted during the three-days. Finally, a focus on fixing the 4 year-old child for a lifetime will be highlighted.

Attendees will be able to:

- 1. Understand why management of the airway is key to medical and dental health*
- 2. List dental co-morbidities elicited from poor sleep breathing and possible solutions*
- 3. Explain the importance nasal breathing, fabricate a provisional oral appliance and recognize the patients autonomic reactivity*
- 4. Determine the ideal oral appliance for different patient types*

The RSL Sleep and Airway Course Track

Dr. Jeff Rouse

Course 1 Sleep Prosthodontics April 16-18

Course 2 Integrating Sleep May 22-23

Course 3 Airway Occlusion May 8-9

Course 4 Blending "Global" and Airway- The "Complete" Dentist- 2016

Course 1 creates a foundation in Sleep Medicine, Sleep Dentistry and Sleep Prosthodontics. After completion of this course you will be prepared to detect, screen, and refer your patients. Appliance therapy is discussed in detail but alternative treatments are also highlighted.

Course 2 moves Sleep concepts to full implementation in a restorative dental practice. The professional development of your clinical team will be enhanced through the interaction with Rouse's clinical team, including topics on Coordinating Sleep, utilizing Sleep software, and Getting the Doctor Paid

Course 3 discusses the impact that maintaining an airway during eating, working, and exercising plays in damaging teeth, joints, and ceramic. This is a view of "Occlusion" is distinct to RSL and is enlivened by its location.

Course 4 provides an evolution and revolution. Details TBA-2016
